

Maria Prezioso, Professor of Economic Geography and European Sustainable University of Rome Tor Vergata

She is a full Professor of Economic Geography and European Sustainable and Cohesive Territorial Planning and Director of a Master's in European Economics and spatial planning. She developed applied research on sustainable, cohesive and competitive integrated strategies, both in European programs (ESPON, ENPI-CBC-MED, URBACT, H2020) and in contract services projects. Until 2022, she has the Italian ESPON programme Contact Point. She supports public bodies for realizing Resilience and Recovery Plan public works and related socioeconomic planning, green and blue economy, tourism planning and governance, and High-Tec for Cultural Heritage at national, regional and local levels. She co-authors national guidelines in ports, MSP, and infrastructures and several papers and books on territorial cohesion assessment (by the TIA model).